This workshop dealt with the environmental issues related to transport in different areas with a particular focus on southern countries.

It aimed at generating a discussion forum for researchers from different backgrounds, at capitalising the best practice and sharing north-south and south-south experiences. Furthermore, the workshop tried to contribute to a state of the art scientific knowledge in southern countries, initiate research topics towards solutions adapted to specific situations in developing countries and making available tools for policy makers and environmental managers order to support them in decision-making.
