On 20 and 21 April 2010, COST organised a workshop on animal nutrition and health. This event took place alongside VIV2010 in The Netherlands. Researchers, scientists and stakeholders related to R&D were the target for this international event for decision makers in the Feed-to-Meat industry.

Bringing scientific expertise close to industry and promote bilateral networking, the workshop included talks on pig development and health, aquaculture and animal nutrition. COST used its networking expertise to identify common ground between science and industry, stirring discussion, promoting networking and creating bilateral science-industry collaborations.
